Please Note:

All levels given are based on Australian Height Datum (AHD).

With regard to future development on flood prone lands, you are advised that Council’s requirements are listed in Council’s WDCP 2022, the NSW Government’s Floodplain Development Manual 2005 and relevant State Government guidelines, flood studies and floodplain risk management studies and plans. These documents can be found on Council’s website www.waverley.nsw.gov.au. Alternatively, you may wish to engage the services of a suitably qualified and practising Civil Engineer with experience in hydraulics and floodplain risk management to advise you of your development opportunities.

Council does not guarantee the accuracy of the information provided by Council in response to this request. A suitably qualified and practising Civil Engineer with experience in hydraulics and floodplain risk management shall be engaged to assist in the interpretation of the information provided by Council. You should also obtain surveyed ground levels of the site and dwellings related to AHD. This information along with the 1% AEP flood level will enable you to determine the extent/depth of flooding, if any, on this property.
